DETAILED ACTION

In response to the restriction requirement mailed on 04/17/08, the applicant has elected the invention of Group 1 (claims 96-115) and has withdrawn claim 116 from prosecution. Applicant election of Group 1 (claims 96-115) is hereby acknowledged. Claims 96-115 are currently pending.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC §101

1. 35 U.S.C. §101 reads as follows:

Whoever invents or discovers any new and useful process, machine, manufacture, or composition of matter, or any new and useful improvement thereof, may obtain a patent therefor, subject to the conditions and requirements of this title.

2. Claims 96-115 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. §101 because the claimed invention is directed to non-statutory subject matter.

3. Based on Supreme Court precedent (Diamond v. Diehr, 450 U.S. 175, 184 (1981); Parker v. Flook, 437 U.S. 584, 588 n.9 (1978); Gottschalk v. Benson, 409 U.S. 63, 70 (1972); Cochrane v. Deener, 94 U.S. 780, 787-88 (1876)) and recent Federal Circuit decisions (In Re Bilski), §101 process must (1) be tied to another statutory class (such as a particular apparatus) or (2) transform underlying subject matter (such as an article or materials) to a different state or thing (the Supreme Court recognized that this test is not necessarily fixed or permanent and may evolve with technological advances. Gottschalk v. Benson, 409 U.S. 63, 71 (1972)).

4. If neither of these requirements is met by the claim(s), the method is not a patent eligible process under 35 U.S.C. §101.

5. In this particular case, regarding the first test, in performing the steps of the claimed subject matter recited in claims 96-115, there is no requirement that a machine be used, thus the claims are not considered sufficiently tied to another statutory class. Regarding the second test, since the claimed subject matter may be performed using only human intelligence, the steps do not sufficiently transform the underlying subject matter to be statutory. Thus, to qualify as a 101 statutory method, the claim should positively recite the other statutory class (the thing or product) to which it is tied and should sufficiently transform the underlying subject matter. Similarly, the steps of the claimed subject matter recited in claims 96-115 do not sufficiently transform the underlying subject matter.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

6. The following is a quotation of the first paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall contain a written description of the invention, and of the manner and process of making and using it, in such full, clear, concise, and exact terms as to enable any person skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make and use the same and shall set forth the best mode contemplated by the inventor of carrying out his invention.

7. Claims 96-115 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, first paragraph, as failing to comply with the written description requirement. The claim(s) contains subject matter which was not described in the specification in such a way as to reasonably convey to one skilled in the relevant art that the inventor(s), at the time the application was filed, had possession of the claimed invention. The applicant currently recites in claims 96, 100, 101 and 102 "calculating the dollar amount of each of a plurality of periodic future incremental payments..." However, the examiner searched the length and breath of the applicant's specification and failed to find a single passage where support for this limitation is recited. Clarification is required.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

8. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

9. Claims 96-115 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Moore et al (Moore hereinafter, PUB NO.: 2004/0088261)

Re claims 96, 97-115. Moore discloses a method of incrementally targeting and saving money using a debit statement associated with at least one customer account, the method comprising: providing a customer with at least one preexisting periodic debit statement associated with at least one account of the customer, the debit statement including at least one of: (i) an unsolicited offer to target savings dollars and (ii) a solicited offer to target savings dollars (see paras 0044, also see paras 0045 and 0057); receiving, in response to the customer's acceptance of the offer, information from the customer designating: (i) at least one specific item the customer would like to purchase or to attain, (ii) a total amount of savings dollars required to purchase or to, attain the item, and (iii) a target date by which the total amount of savings dollars is to be saved (see paras 0045, paras 0047, and 0054); calculating the dollar amount of each of a plurality of periodic incremental payments the customer pays voluntarily over a period of time based on the total amount of savings dollars required to purchase or to attain the item and the target date, the period of time expiring on the target date (see paras 0058-0059); identifying in one or more subsequent debit statements an amount of the next periodic incremental payment (see paras 0059); and optionally, receiving from the customer a payment, the payment satisfying, wholly or partially, one or more payment obligations to the account and, optionally, including at least one periodic incremental payment toward the total amount of savings dollars (see paras 0058-0059).

Response to Arguments

Applicant's arguments with respect to claims 96-115 have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.
